Sylvie, the beautiful, smart and perfect elder daughter of her Chinese American family, heads to the Netherlands to visit her dying grandmother, but bafflingly vanishes. It's up to her sheltered younger sister, Amy, to find out what happened to Sylvie Lee. Along the way she discovers some long-hidden and well-kept family secrets.

A novel about Berlin on the eve of World War II.

Avon | paperback | available December 8 | Item 1506824

It's the summer of 1938, and British reporters Georgie Young and Max Spender have been sent to cover Germany's descent into nationalism, fascism and the Hitler era. As Georgie and Max witness innocent people terrorized and Nazism give rise to an increasingly inevitable European war, they decide they must cease documenting the news and warn the world of the horrors to come.

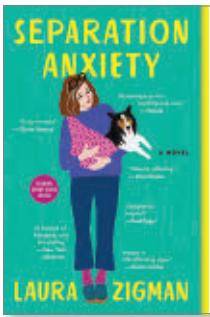

Jack Ryan is back.

G. P. Putnam's Sons

hardcover | available now | Item 1477097

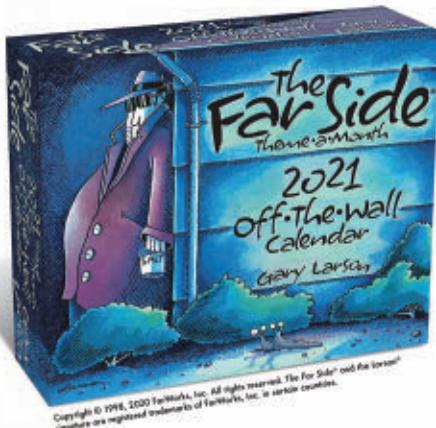

Jack Ryan, the hero of Tom Clancy's bestselling military thrillers, is now the president of the United States and the stakes are higher than ever before. President Ryan finds himself dealing with a missing Chinese scientist, a cataclysmic event in the Arctic Circle and a mole at the highest level of American intelligence.

A thoughtful, quirky novel about marriage, coping and dogs.

Ecco | paperback | available December 1 | Item 1506793

Bestselling author Laura Zigman's Separation Anxiety tells the tale of Judy, a woman in the midst of a tailspin—her marriage is dying, her children's books didn't sell and she feels like a fraud at her job as an advice columnist. It's going to take something odd to give her a reason to get up in the morning, and for Judy, that's the pet dog she pops into a baby sling and wears around each day.

Experiencing the sublime pleasures of Mexico's coastal cities

by PETER GREENBERG

TODD BIGELOW

Peter Greenberg is the multiple-Emmy Award-winning travel editor for CBS News and host of The Travel Detective on public television (petergreenberg.com).

Travel to Mexico for the culture; stay for the magical sunsets, lively beaches and the chance to view nature, from sea turtles and birds to reptiles, migrating whales and more.

San José del Cabo

There are two cities on the southern tip of Baja California: San José del Cabo and Cabo San Lucas. Just 20 miles apart, with a corridor of luxury beachside resorts between them, these cities have distinctly different personalities.

San José del Cabo, on the southeast end, is the quieter of the two. Filled with colonial architecture and art galleries, the city features art walks every Thursday evening most of the year, with downtown streets closed as galleries stay open late and serve complimentary wine and tequila. This is also the place to book any number of small charter fishing boats for half-day adventures, and the chefs at most of the hotels will cook your catch.

Just a one-hour drive north is Pulmo National Park, on the Sea of Cortez. You can swim, snorkel or dive in the 27-acre marine reserve. And it's not unusual to see giant rays, whale sharks, schools of snapper and hammerhead sharks.

Cabo San Lucas

Lively Cabo San Lucas is a longtime favorite for its perpetual spring break atmosphere, although it offers plenty of milder diversions for those past their college years.

For instance, in addition to the city's swimmable beach, the beach by El Arco—the arched rock in a dramatic promontory that forms the southernmost reach of the peninsula and a great spot for a picnic—is just a five-minute water taxi ride across the bay.

Back in town, grab a $2 fish taco at Tacos Gardenia, a family-owned local favorite since 1980.

Puerto Vallarta

Puerto Vallarta, in mainland Mexico, is known for its beautiful beaches and luxury resorts, but you'll find Puerto Vallarta is worth a visit for many other reasons as well.

Clockwise from far left:
El Arco de Cabo (Cabo San Lucas);
an art walk in San José del Cabo; undersea delights at Pulmo National Park in the Sea of Cortez.

El Salado Estuary, a 418-acre urban sanctuary, is in the heart of Puerto Vallarta's hotel zone. Home to more than 100 species of birds, it also provides habitat for dozens of species of amphibians and reptiles, including iguanas and crocodiles.

Just a half-hour north of Puerto Vallarta is Planeta Cacao, a chocolate garden, in the town of El Tondoroque. Cacao has been grown in the area for over 1,000 years, and your tour comes with not only a history lesson but also a make-your-own-chocolate experience and, of course, chocolate tasting.

Riviera Nayarit

Also north of Puerto Vallarta, Riviera Nayarit sprawls along nearly 200 miles of coast. In addition to great surfing spots, this part of Mexico offers glimpses of ancient civilizations. You can hike ancient trails of the Huichol people, descendants of the Aztecs, to the Alta Vista Petroglyph Complex, with its powerful engraved images.

During the summer, thousands of sea turtles lay their eggs on Banderas Bay beaches. Look into programs (many hotel-sponsored) that let you be a part of the process, from watching the eggs being laid to their transport to a turtle nursery and their eventual release back into the sea. ■

COSTCO CONNECTION

FIRECRACKER SALMON

Multiexport Foods

SALMON

1.5 lb skinless salmon fillet, cut into
1½-inch wide strips
2 to 3 Tbsp canola or avocado oil
Chopped chives, for garnish

MARINADE

½ to ⅓ cup Sriracha sauce
½ to ⅔ cup brown sugar, or more to make it less spicy
3 Tbsp soy sauce
3 garlic cloves, grated
1 to 2 tsp red pepper flakes
½ to 1 tsp salt

Mix together marinade ingredients in a large bowl.

Marinate salmon portions in the refrigerator for 30 to 60 minutes.

In a large, oven-proof skillet, heat oil over medium-high heat. Pan-sear salmon on both sides, about 2 to 3 minutes on each side, until crispy. Preheat oven to 400 F. Transfer pan to oven and finish cooking through, about 5 minutes (recommended internal temperature is 145 F).
Garnish with chopped chives. Makes 4 servings.
